Temat/Topic: How to embrace diversity in the team – Points of You workshop

Prezenter/ Presenter's name: Agnieszka Noworol

Points of You is a unique coaching technique which supports interaction between the right side of brain responsible for intuitive and emotional thinking and left side which allows logical and analytical thinking. This occurs when we look at a photograph and a word at the same time. The photo stimulates our right, creative side while a word stimulates analytical side of the brain. The simultaneous stimulation of the two brain hemispheres creates a struggle between the emotional and the rational, momentarily “shorting out” the vigilant defence mechanisms of our mind. This “deliberate confusion” gives the mind a short respite from our preconceived ideas on how things “should” or “ought” to be, and allows our mind to open up to new places inside ourselves, shifting our point of view.

Very often change starts when we are open and ready to look at things from different perspective. Taking part in Points of You workshop allows us to see other points of view, break the pattern and discover solutions we would never take into account with regular coaching.
